Mission & Vision

Vision

A secure Indo-Asia-Pacific region characterized by effective and accountable security sector governance in accordance with internationally accepted norms.

Mission

DKI APCSS educates, connects, and empowers security practitioners to build partner capacity, shared understanding, and networks to enhance stability in the Indo-Asia-Pacific region.

Guiding Principles

Inouye Asia-Pacific Center for Security Studies (DKI APCSS) is a Department of Defense institution that provides a forum where current and future military and civilian leaders from the Indo-Asia-Pacific gather to address regional and global security issues and enhance security cooperation through programs of executive education, professional exchange, and building relationships of trust and confidence.

Regional Security Studies Intern Program

Internship opportunities are available throughout the year for undergraduates, graduate students, and those who have recently completed their academic programs (within 2 years). Interns support our suite of courses through course development, preparation, and execution as assistant seminar leaders. In addition, interns pursue research in partnership with faculty mentors, support workshops and visits, and develop their own projects on Asia-Pacific security. Interns are uncompensated and interns are responsible for travel, accommodations and living expenses. Application information is available online at www.apcss.org.

Women, Peace, and Security

DKI-APCSS contributes to DoD's efforts to advance the U.S. National Action Plan on Women, Peace and Security. Since 2012, participation of women in Center programs has increased from 10% to more than 25%. As a topic integrated in each course, the program has resulted in greater awareness of and opportunities for women in the security sector.

In-Resident Courses

The five-week Advanced Security Cooperation: Executive Course focuses on building relationships among mid-career leaders and decision makers within the region. Its curriculum emphasizes the non-warfighting aspects of security and international relations, and challenges Fellows to develop regional and transnational perspectives. Security is examined as a comprehensive mix of political, economic, social, military, diplomatic, information and ecological dimensions. MASL: SAP0001

The four-week Comprehensive Security Responses to Terrorism Course provides focused knowledge and skills practiced at the operational and strategic level, all designed to enhance Fellow's ability to work together to counter ideological support for and combat terrorism cooperatively for the long term. The course facilitates relationships among current and future counter-terrorism practitioners. It also helps engender trust necessary for increased information sharing and identify ways to reduce cultural obstacles to cooperation in the international struggle against terrorism. MASL: SAP0002

The four-week Comprehensive Crisis Management (CCM) Course, focuses on preventing, preparing and responding to crises. The course will deepen attendees' abilities to understand and deal with the multi-faceted, interdependent nature of both natural and man-made crises. The course focuses on actions to prevent routine difficulties from collapsing into crisis, responding to crises in ways that reduce the near-term impact, and setting the stage for mid-term return to a sustainable development path. MASL: SAP0000

The one-week Transnational Security Cooperation: Senior Executive Course is an intensive program for current senior leaders. It is designed for military officers at the two- and three-star level and director/general civilian equivalents from the Asia-Pacific region. The curriculum emphasizes the impact of change in the region and evolving security roles, capabilities, and opportunities. MASL: SAP0003

The one-week Asia-Pacific Orientation Course covers trends and current issues shaping the regional security environment. The course focuses on U.S. policy and provides an introduction to regional cultures, politics, protocols and challenges. The curriculum broadly examines: Security Foundations; Regional Security Perspectives; Country Specific Issues; Transnational Issues; Governance, and Development and Security Cooperation Issues. This rigorous program of lectures and interactive sessions better equips graduating course Fellows with policy perspectives and tools important for duties at U.S. Pacific Command, service/functional components, and other U.S. Government Agencies and Activities. Workshops and Dialogues

Workshops and Dialogues– DKI APCSS' tightly focused workshop and security dialogue program anticipates the most challenging regional and transnational security issues and cooperation tasks ahead. These serve as a forum for key regional interagency, multinational security policy drafters and decision makers to develop cooperative approaches to these problems.

Research & Information Sharing

Research – DKI APCSS faculty members conduct collaborative research on security issues that support the Center's mission, which includes its courses, workshops, and professional development. Reports, papers, articles and books are available on our website at www.apcss.org.

Roundtables – Each year more than 1,700 visitors come to the Center including senior leaders from the U.S. and other countries throughout the region. Visitors participate in roundtable discussions and serve as guest speakers.

Partnering – DKI APCSS partners with many other Department of Defense and U.S. Government agencies, local and regional academic institutions and universities, as well as a number of on-island partners that have an interest in regional security.

Alumni Sustained Engagement

DKI APCSS continues to engage more than 11,000 graduates and 57 alumni associations worldwide. The alumni program keeps alumni connected to each other and to the Center.
